Friendship

On Thursday morning, we had the wonderful opportunity to hear from the kind Katelyn. She told us about how growing up, she was given a set of cards from God but didn't really understand why he had to give her those certain cards. They were difficult to deal with. She shared about how she had to deal with her parents divorcing, and feeling like she needed to be the one to protect and help her brother Jacob along growing up. She felt that she needed to be the one to "fix" everything. She also had a tough time because of her mom's mental illness, and her own struggle with her body image. Katelyn felt so alone, like she didn't have a place anywhere. Katelyn learned from camp that if there was a God that was so wonderful, so powerful, magnificent and loving that he could individually hang each one of the stars in the sky, then he can make sure that she is okay. Katelyn learned to put all of her Trust into the Lord, because He is the only one in control anyway.

whatever cards I hold don't matter, what matters is that God
holds me in his hands
